Art Unit: 1774

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-51,54, and 56-57 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Mlezvia (US 6057024) alone or optionally in view of Applicant admission at page 17 line13-16 of spec.

Applicant admits at page 17 lines 113-16 that Fig 1 shows the present invention, the elastomeric article 10 contains natural rubber latex substrate 12 and a plurality of elastomeric melt blown fibers 14 deposited thereon.

Mleziva, a Kimberly Clark Patent also teaches a composite elastic material (elastomeric article) comprising an elastomeric elements (elastomeric latex substrate) coated with a layer of elastomeric melt blown fibers(no glue) which inherently deforms, spread out, entangles, flattens, partially integrates the melt blown fibers with the elastomeric elements (elastomeric latex substrate) or fully embedded within said elastomeric elements (latex substrate). See Fig 2, col.2line 6-65, for example. Mlezvia further teaches the elastomeric melt blown fibers (extensible layers) can be made of thermoplastic polymeric fibers and wood pulp fibers (which include thermomechanical pulp fibers and non-thermomechincal pulp fibers. Mllezvia further teaches the composite elastic material (Elastomeric articles can be made into garments, pads, diaper, and personal care products (see abstract).

Art Unit: 1774

Thus, the examiner has a reason to believe that the elastomeric melt blown fibers of Mlezvia inherently flatten, deform, entangle, partially embedded, or fully embed in the latex substrate as claimed due to the applicant admission and/or the same structural identity as claimed.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 52, 53, and 55 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mlezvia (US 6057024).

Mlezvia teach all of the claimed invention except the thickness of the elastomeric melt blown fibers.

Thus, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to vary and control the thick of the melt blow fibers, as taught by Mlezvia, in order to control the feel and/or softness of the resulting end product.

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

Art Unit: 1774

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.

The cited patents disclose the state of the prior art.
